By E. H. M.

One volume, 12mo, nearly 300 pages, beautifully illustrated.

"This is a tale of an awe-arousing epoch in veritable history, presented in the form and with all the interest of romance. It is a narrative of scenes in the life and at the death of Mariamne, the favorite and most beautiful of King Herod's wives. It is written with much eleannoe and vigor, and while its interest is of that unflagging hind which precludes the possibility of laying it aside unfinished, it fixes in the mind indelibly a series of events of the wondrous era of the salvation of the human race, with which every Christian should be familiar. Who the anthos is we have no idea, but we should like to get hold of anything and everything of hera which bears as powerful an impress of genius as does the work before us."

"We are prompted to say, without flattery of authors or editators, or a straw's concern for the publisher's profits, that this is one of the sweetest morsels for the lovers of poetry to be met with in any English toprint we have seen for many a day. Not that they will meet with the towering genius of a Mitton, nor with the terrible meteorie sublicuity of a Byron, nor with the pathos and piety of a Cowper, but with a string of diamonds, spackling in gold pure poetry, remerenate nal common-sense ballade, withy and witching rity see, all charte, child-like and benatiful, thrown together in delightful order in the mides of disorder, and concurring to the one result of delighting the fancy and improving the social feelings." THE INDIAN FAIRY BOOK.

A collection of Indian Fairy Lecends, many of which are the same as those introduced into Longfellow's "Hawatha."

I vol. ILUSTRATED BY JOHN MCLEYN.

I vol. INDIAN CHIEF'S OFFINON OF ITS MELTY.

The Publishers are specially gravified in being able to present the following unique and valuable indorsement of "The Indian Fairy Book." WA-OWAWANAOUS (PETER WILSON) is a blood triation of the celebrated Red Jacket, and is one of the chiefs of the Executive Council of the Indian Reservation in this State. He is a graphic master of Indian stories blusself, and will be well remembered by many as the doquent champion of his people before the New York Historical Society, and on other occasions. There is no individual of the Red Race in America who can claim superiority of intellect to this gifted Iroquois, and his opinion will therefore have special weight with the public on a subject se deeply fascinating as the fairy talee of his people:

"GENTLEMEN: I have read your recent publication entitled:

"GENTLEMEN: I have read your recent publication entitled?

"The Indian Fairy Book," with deep interest. The work is replete with the most beautiful mythological traditions of the Algonquin family of my race, and cannot fail to interest the reader. It is rarely that we find a work that contains so stuthful a representation of the faucies and imaginations of the read man, who, without books of literature, is compelled to resort to his mental faculties to interest the young, and while away the long evenings of Winter.

Respectfully yours.
